Volunteer Training Grads Win Big Prizes in 2008 Yearend Drawing Off-Road Businesses Support Training by Del Albright

(Mokelumne Hill, CA, December 20, 2008). Del Albright, Course Developer and Master Trainer, is proud to announce the 4 winners of the 2008 Yearend Drawing for the Recreational Leadership Training Course (RLTC). Off-road businesses understand the importance of providing training to volunteers in motorized recreation, so these super partners have weighed in with nice prizes to reward successful graduates of the RLTC course.

1st Place winner is Kurt Schneider of Granite Bay, CA, who won a Tmax Winch (12,000 pound) for the front of his YJ Jeep from JEEPCAMPING.COM.

2nd Place winner is Shannon Chard of Grizzly Flats, CA, who took home a brand new set of 4 Rancho RS 9000 XL Shocks.

3rd Place winner is Mark Cave of Visalia, CA, who loaded up with a cordless Warn PullzAll tool.

4th Place winner is Scott Kyle of New York, currently serving our country as a soldier in Afghanistan, who won a ticket for a free Jeepers Jamboree trip on the famed Rubicon Trail.

RLTC is an online training course designed to help recreational leaders (and potential leaders) inspire, motivate and facilitate volunteers. It helps folks become better volunteers in their chosen sport. Written and developed by Del Albright, BlueRibbon Coalition Ambassador and recreation advocate, RLTC is based on 35 years of experience in leadership, supervision and management, providing students with hundreds of techniques to empower volunteers to action while avoiding burnout.

"RLTC offers over 200 pages of just about every tip, trick, and tap dance I've ever used or learned in 35 years of proven leadership, supervision and management!", says Del.

Students from all over the country are enrolled in RLTC, working at their own pace, and completing the course totally online. All ten Modules of the course come with an exam. RLTC is the companion course to the hands-on workshop, Volunteer Leader & Land Stewardship (VLLS), providing the foundation for recreational activism and leadership, and giving more detail in the art of managing volunteers. The overall objective of RLTC (and VLLS) is to help volunteers lead and guide other volunteers to victory while keeping our trails open and our sports alive!

Over twenty off-road businesses are partnered up with Del to reward RLTC students with prizes, goodies, swag and freebies in order to encourage the development of more trained off-road leaders and activists. Four businesses have provided grand prizes as a yearend reward.

JEPCAMPING.COM, based in Placerville, CA is active on several fronts helping to save our trails. They provided a brand new Tmax Winch for the yearend drawing, adding a rugged accessory to any rig. These great folks are very active in Rubicon Trail efforts as well, by supporting the Rubicon Trail Foundation and Friends of the Rubicon.

Warn Industries, a long-time partner and sponsor of Del's Jeep, provided a new Warn PullzAll tool. Warn is known worldwide for their involvement and support of our off-road organizations and efforts, as well as their commitment to quality products. The PullzAll is a tremendous tool that will pull, haul, lift or drag about anything.

Rancho, a name that means shocks, kicked in a full set of four adjustable RS 9000 XL shocks. Rancho is 50 years strong and well recognized as the leader in off-road adjustable shocks as well as remote control technology.

Jeepers Jamboree is the granddaddy of the Rubicon Trail trips. Over 56 years strong, based out of Georgetown, CA, this ticket for a free trip through the Rubicon is a legendary adventure not to be missed. Considered the oldest, toughest and largest organized event of this type in the world, Jeepers Jamboree is a lifetime experience.

"By helping to develop more on-the-ground leaders in motorized recreation, these businesses are super stars in my book. I would encourage every off-roader to buy from businesses like these – they are essential to our trail-saving efforts," added Del.
